For FAA funding

Tampa consulting firm to map airport master plan

BELLE GLADE—The city has taken another step in what eventually could lead to major improvements at the municipal airport.

With the naming of the Tampa consulting firm of Airport One to develop a master plan for the airport last week, city commissioners are on the way to gaining Federal Aviation Administration funding.

Before the FAA will even consider doing any work at an airport there must be a master plan submitted to them by an engineering firm on their approved list.

For some time now the city has considered the merits of even going ahead with seeking the funding. There was apprehension that the city might be getting itself into more than it is bargaining for.

Mayor Thomas Altman for some months has expressed caution in approaching any improvements at the airport. He has continued to say that red tape and regulations might tie the city's hands.

But last week the mayor and the commission voted to draw up a contract with the engineering firm.

Under the FAA requirements the engineer will study the airport and make a recommendation.

Once that takes place the FAA can either reject any improvements or go ahead with work on runways, lights, fencing and possibly other improvements.

If the city qualifies for the funding it would receive 95 percent of the money needed through the FAA and the Florida Department of Transportation.

That money could also be used to pay the engineer who is preparing the plan.

Engineers say they can report to the FAA with their findings by October.

Engineers are optimistic the city will have little trouble in promoting for grant money in the fall. They believe they can justify using the funds for the local airport.

The engineering firm has done work at Palm Beach Airport and 300 other airport projects. It has been in the consulting business for 25

The commission selected this company from a number on the FAA approved list. Last week it was narrowed down to three firms and this one was the top choice.

Airport One sees possibilities for Belle Glade's airport. They see opportunities of getting commuter airlines flying between large cities in the South and Belle Glade.

For the past several years the city has seen the need for fencing and lighting at the airport. The city has worked with the Florida Department of Transportation on a 50-50 basis.

If the FAA funding comes through the city will get much more work done while spending less money.

'Rice effect' phenomenon shows increasing benefits

BELLE GLADE—Agronomists call it "the rice effect" and each year they are discovering the benefits of this phenomenon.

At the Eighth Annual Rice Field Day conducted at the Belle Glade Everglades Research and Education Center a group of scientists learned more about a subject of great importance to growers in this area.

For years researchers have noted that planting rice in cane fields during the off-season has a beneficial effect on the cane production. Each year the "information" is showing its benefits are greater than originally thought.

Last week area growers and researchers learned the results of a number of studies done with rice on sugar cane lands.

On the average the result of planting rice during the summer, as opposed to leaving fields fallow, was a significant increase in cane yields.

Also, there is a significant difference in the juice quality on the rice fields.

This "rice effect" is nothing new. But each year it gains more support.

Data collected from a number of fields showed that while a fallow field yielded about 40 tons of cane, an adjacent "rice" field would yield over 50 tons.

Scientific research has been collected for about five years. Prior to that rice was grown on Glades land as a cover crop, used to flood fields to keep direct sunlight off fields.

But scientists have shown that rice also adds productivity to soil. Although the rice itself is not an economically outstanding crop, its benefits come in other ways.

Another important factor in rice production is use of the crop in the feeding of beef cattle.

In this area, forage such as tropical grass hays and small grain straws, are so low in protein and energy that cattle cannot consume enough of the forage to meet maintenance requirements.

Rice production, cattle ranchers are learning, creates a crop residue, rice straw, which is more and more being valued as a cattle feed.

The rice straw is treated with ammonia and its nutritive value is greatly improved. With the chemical treatment crude protein rises and animals experience weight gain.

In noting the rice effect, scientists caution that part of the effect may be attributed to the fertilizers put on the fields.

Although this might account for some of the increase in cane production, there is little doubt that the planting of rice plays a significant role in higher and better cane yields.

Research continues on dealing with insect pests and pesticides for the rice crops in this area. Scientists are also interested in increasing rice fertility and working with different varieties of the crop.

While rice in the Glades at this time is not considered a money-making crop, it continues to show promise in other ways.

RICE FIELDS are becoming more and more a common sight in the Glades. Cane growers are learning that planting rice during the off-season can improve the yield of sugar cane. Called "the rice effect" researchers discussed the rice picture at the Eighth Annual Rice Field Day held through the Belle Glade Everglades Research and Education Center last week.

City streets to be repaved

BELLE GLADE—Within several weeks the city will begin a repaving operation on at least 10 city streets.

City commissioners learned at the last commission meeting that there is about $95,000 in the budget for the work.

Money from the county gasoline tax is used for the repaving.

The city is receiving about $5,000 more than it got last year, according to City Manager W.E. "Tom" Strang. Strang noted that if the money holds out up to 12 streets are on the schedule.

Earlier in the year commissioners were given a list of streets which need paved. From that list they decided which streets were in the worst shape.

The work will be done on the priority basis from the commissioners' recommendations.

The street at the top of the work list is Southwest Second Street. It will be paved from Southwest Avenue D from North Main Street to Northeast First Street.

The second priority is Southeast First Street from Southwest Avenue E to the Hillsboro Canal.

The third street is Southwest Fourth Street from South Main Avenue E to the canal.

—Southeast Seventh

Street to Southwest Second Street.

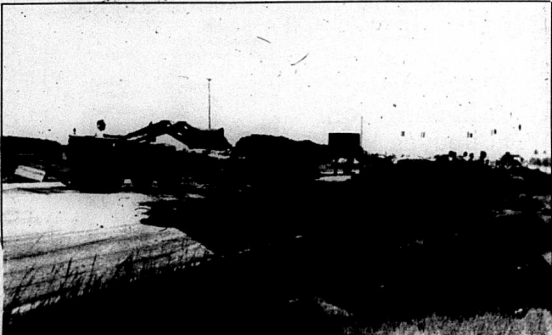

The other streets on the list follow:

—Southeast Second Street from Southwest Avenue E to the Hillsboro Canal.

—Southwest Avenue F from South Main Street to Southwest Third Street.

—Southwest Fourth Street from South Main Avenue E to the canal.

—Southeast Seventh

WORKERS CLEAN UP State Road 80 Friday after a sod truck dumped its load. Traffic was rerouted for almost two hours as the road was cleared. The driver of the truck was issued a citation. There were no injuries.

Sod truck drops load

BELLE GLADE—The driver of a sod truck which lost most of its load at the intersection of State Roads 715 and 80 says he "heard a pop" as he approached the traffic light.

The truck was traveling toward Belle Glade about 11 a.m. Friday when the accident occurred. There were no injuries.

The driver said he slowed for the traffic light when he heard a popping sound. He looked behind but could see nothing wrong.

He said he slowed down further and then heard a louder noise. This time he lost control of his truck and traveled onto the median. The truck then jackknifed and the cab and trailer were almost parallel.

Although the truck did not overturn most of the sod fell onto the roadway. Traffic was rerouted for about two hours.

The driver said there was no traffic in either direction at the time of the mishap.

Florida Highway Patrol Trooper Starke said he would probably issue at least one citation to the driver for bald tires.

The driver was delivering the sod to Fort Lauderdale.

Sugar officials condemn suit

By BILL DOUGHTY

Two sugar industry officials have labeled a federal class-action suit filed by group of Haitian charging growers with discriminatory hiring practices as "pure harassment."

The suit, filed on behalf of 13 Haitian workers Tuesday, July 9 in West Palm Beach by the Florida Rural Legal Services and the Farmworkers Justice Fund of Washington, D.C., said the industry has been violating anti-race, labor and civil rights for the last 40 years.

George Sorn, general manager of the Florida Fruit and Vegetable Association, and Jim Terrill, administrative vice-president for United States Sugar Corporation, say the federally funded legal services are using the suit to harass the industry through the media.

Sorn and Terrill both said they have not seen copies of the suit, but agree it is simply a rehash of an issue that comes up every few years.

"My first reaction was, here we go again," Sorn said.

"It's nothing new, these same charges have been brought up on and off for the past four years," said Terrill.

The men said the suit is an attack on the H-2 program, under which the industry recruits 9,000 cane cutters to hack through the more than 360,000 acres of sugarcane surrounding the Lake Okechobee area.

This region provides 20 percent of the sugar grown in the U.S. and pumps more than $450 million annually into the state's economy.

Under H-2, the industry can employ foreign workers for the cane harvest, but only after at-

Bank of Belle Glade announces promotion of three officers

BELLE GLADE—Three employees of the Bank of Belle Glade recently received promotions, bank president Wayne Michaels announced this week.

The three employees have worked in almost all phases of banking while with the Bank of Belle Glade.

Deborah Alston was promoted to the position of Operations Officer. She will be in charge of loan operations at the bank.

Alston, who began work at the bank 10 years ago, started in the bookkeeping department after graduation from high school.

Since then she has attended Palm Beach Junior College, where she concentrated her studies in finance and banking.

The Belle Glade native is the mother of two children. Stacy is five years old and Jacob is three.

Marietta Redd also was promoted to Operations Officer and will serve as Branch Manager at the Bank of Belle Glade's South Bay Branch.

Redd has worked for the company for the past 13 years. She began in the bookkeeping department in 1967 and worked intermittently for her first several years.

The new branch manager has been at the South Bay office for several months and took over her present duties recently.

Redd has one child, a 13-year-old son named Christopher.

Virginia Johnson was promoted to Operations Officer in the Data Processing and Bookkeeping Department. She will serve as manager of both departments.

The new Operations Officer started with the Bank of Belle Glade four years ago following graduation from high school.

Johnson has two children. Jason is six years old and Courtney is two.

In announcing the promotions, Michaels noted all three new Operations Officers began their banking careers at the Bank of Belle Glade.

Each has worked in a variety of capacities and worked themselves up to their present positions.

Through the years they have taken specialized banking courses and received training through the American Institute of Banking.

Waddill named research center head

BELLE GLADE—Dr. Van Waddill is the new director of the Everglades Research and Education Center.

The new director took charge of the research center this month. He had served as deputy director of the Tropical Research and Education Center in Homestead, Florida, for three years before coming to Belle Glade.

Dr. Waddill, originally from a rural area of Texas, says he is anxious to begin work on the rich soil of the Glades.

He comments that the work he did at Homestead was of a different character. There the soil was poor, while here there is an abundance of rich land.

The new director has plans for the Everglades Research and Education Center. Among them is attracting students to the center.

Dr. Waddill believes with agriculture students working at the center, the full-time researchers are freed up from some routine work to devote more time to research.

He said he would like to see space set aside as a dormitory for students at the center.

The buildings and equipment at the center are another concern of the director. He notes that many of the buildings are quite old and have through the years deteriorated.

He believes that about $5-million worth of construction will put the physical plant to where it should be.

He would like to see a new laboratory, conference room and administrative area. He would also like to have some equipment and machinery replaced.

The original building, constructed in the 1930s, will remain standing. About $36,000 has been allocated to renovate the building.

Although Dr. Waddill intends to concentrate on administrative work for the next two years, his background is in research.

At Homestead he worked at developing insect management programs for tomatoes.

Presently there are a number of openings for researchers at the Center. Dr. Waddill plans to fill those positions as soon as possible. He hopes to have them all filled within two years.

He says he is encouraged by the staff at the Center now and anticipates some important work being done.

Dr. Waddill and his wife, Becky, plan to move to Belle Glade soon.

Stop needless suits

Another in a series of discrimination suits has been filed against sugar cane growers in the name of civil liberty by the Florida Rural Legal Services and the Farmworkers Justice Fund.

The suit claims those who hire cane cutters discriminate against domestic workers in favor of more subservient, faster, harder working cutters from the Islands.

But it should be noted that the suit was filed on behalf of a group of Haitian aliens granted refugee status in this country, not native citizens.

It's not the first suit of its kind we've seen. Three years ago, a similar suit filed in Immokalee was dismissed by a U.S. District Court in Miami. Discrimination charges have been an ongoing thorn in the side of growers.

"If we could find domestic workers who could cut the cane at a satisfactory rate we could save $290 per man each season," said George Sorn, general manager of the Florida Fruit and Vegetable Association, which hires most of the cutters for this state's major growers.

Industry officials have said time and time again that they would love to hire domestic workers. Those workers are just not willing put up with the admittely brutal work that makes cane cutting such a high-pay job. Many quit after just a few days in the fields.

The sugar industry has provided far more domestic jobs in the Glades area than they have ever taken away. They have a right to hire the people who are going to get the job done efficiently at the best cost. And to have those workers show up day after day.

Consider also the fact that many foreign workers use salaries earned in the sugar fields to buy products and goods to take back home when the season is done. This pumps more even money into South Florida's economy beyond the $450 million brought into the state annually by the sugar industry.

It is time to stop using taxpayer dollars allowing federally funded legal aid services to rehash issues time and time again when similar suits have proven fruitless.

Just you and me

We watched as a nation and as a part of humanity, with undeniable awe and the kind of raw emotion that does not often surface among gatherings of this magnitude.

The Live Aid concerts held in London and Philadelphia Saturday, July 13 proved truly that indeed "we ARE the world," as more than $40 million was raised to feed the starving in Africa.

The images from both sides of the Atlantic will remain etched in history for quite a while.

From Joan Baez, evoking remembrances of another multitudinous musical occasion as she welcomed this generation's Woodstock at Philly's JFK Stadium, to Paul McCartney's bittersweet rendition of "Let It Be" at Wembley Stadium in London, hands were clasped and voices sang in unison for 16 hours.

Tears poured as Teddy Pendergrass was wheeled on stage, making his first return since being paralyzed in a car accident. Phil Collins listened to the roar of cheering on both shores after taking a Concorde flight after his London appearance.

Between the tears and the roars, there was realization of what was being accomplished, as technology, humanity and music merged to create, at least temporarily, a global village with a population of almost two billion people.

Words cannot define the scope of the contributions from the innumerable musical stars who gave of their time and talents. These six-figure superstars came a long way in shedding their drug-imbibing, capitalistic image, to prove their still exists a social conscience.

Perhaps a moment of reflection is necessary though.

While acknowledging the accomplishments of Live Aid, USA For Africa and others, time and funds should be taken to remember the hungry and starving right here in our own backyard.

Many children and adults right here in the United States will go to bed tonight hungry, suffering, feeling even more detached from that world we feel so much a part of right now and not believing that social conscience exists at all.

To make the world a better place to live, we have to start with our little corner of it. Just you and me.

A good shepherd: out of date?

Column by Rev. David T. Evans

Is the image of the good shepherd out of date? Is the idea of Christ as a shepherd out of date?

Today companies are concerned about their corporate image: professional organizations, doctors, lawyers, want to present the proper image to the public.

One of the oldest professional images we have in the Bible is that of the shepherd: Abel was a keeper of sheep, Abraham had flocks of sheep and Moses was watching his father-in-law's sheep when he saw the burning bush in the wilderness. David, the great king of Israel, was a shepherd boy when Samuel selected him for his future kingship.

In the New Testament Jesus announces to his disciples, "I am the good shepherd. I know my own sheep and they know me. I will lay down my life for my sheep." What kind of image has the shepherd conjured in your mind?

We had sheep raisers in a community I used to live in. One man raised 400 lambs a year. During the lambing season he spent nearly all of his time with the sheep, yet, he did not fit the picture of a shepherd.

Let us look at the shepherd of the time of Jesus. He lived with the sheep all the time. The land was inhabited by wild animals.

The shepherd wore a garment of sheep skin, usually with the fleece on the inside. He carried a bag made of the skin of an animal, in which he carried his food-bread, dried fruit, olives, and cheese. He had a sling of which we have heard of from our earliest day in the story of David and Goliath.

The Israelites had a reputation for being skilled with the sling; they could sling a stone at a hair and not miss. The shepherd could drop a stone just in front of the sheep so that the sheep would stop and turn back.

The shepherd had a rod which he carried on his belt; it was a heavy piece of wood, perhaps three feet long, with a lump the size of an orange at one end.

The staff, very familiar to us, was a long crooked stick with a crook to pull the straying sheep back. In spite of the antiquity of his calling, the shepherd was not accepted by the orthodox religious person since he could not observe the complicated rules of hand washing and ceremonial cleansing.

In the east, sheep are usually kept for wool and milk, whereas, in the west, they are mainly used in the production of meat.

So, in Palestine, the sheep might stay in a flock eight or nine years and the shepherd might actually know every sheep by name.

At the sound of a stranger's voice, the sheep would run for the protection of the faithful guardian.

An eighteenth century traveler in Palestine tells that the sheep in Palestine were taught to dance, slow or fast, to the whistle or a flute tune of their own shepherd. The shepherd was solitary, courageous, and patient, with a spirit of self-sacrifice.

How does this description fit in with Jesus Christ? Jesus knows his sheep; He stays close to them and calls each by name. We are the sheep and His call comes to us through a parent, a friend, or the preached or written word.

The good shepherd is ever watchful over his sheep. No wild animals are stalking us, but the temptation and pressure of this life are a constant danger.

At times the sheep would be housed in a cave at night with the shepherd blocking the entrance. If anyone attempted to get at the sheep, he must go over the shepherd. Jesus says, "I am the door of the sheep."

He will protect you with his life. He says, "This promise! He carried out on the Cross. Ministers are called pastors, and pastor is the Latin word for shepherd. Being the shepherd to a part of God's flock is a tremendous responsibility. All pastors look to Jesus Christ as a pattern for life.

The image of the good shepherd is one of strength and courage, unceasing vigilance, and infinite patience, and of one willing to speak the Word of God with courage. He is always on guard to his sheep—his people—from the dangers of this life.

The shepherd also has patience, developed over years of watching his sheep, knowing how slowly they develop. The element which binds the characteristics together into a bond of loyalty is his love for the sheep.

When Jesus speaks of sheep, He is speaking to us, of course. Sheep are easily led astray—as we are, but we have the good shepherd.

The image of the shepherd may seem to be 'out of date'. He is old-fashioned, if it is such, to be courageous, vigilant, patient, and loving. Actually, each Christian should seek to pattern his life after the good shepherd, being shepherds of a part of God's flock.

We have a responsibility, born out of love which God has for us, to be a shepherd to our family, friends, and those with whom we come in contact.

tempting to find domestic workers - that includes aliens granted refugee status. U.S. Sugar hires its own cutters, while the Florida Fruit and Vegetable Association supplies workers to the remaining majority of growers.

The suit claims that:
 •The industry blacklists domestic workers who fail to complete the cutting season for any reason.

•Growers go out of their way to find reasons to fire domestic workers.

•One group handles all the hiring and sets all wages, thus eliminating competition.

Experiences of several workers are also outlined in the suit. They say they were injured, not told about jobs or were told they were not fast enough. Each was fired, the suit claims.

Growers deny having a blacklist, deny any mistreatment or singling out of domestic workers and claim they would love to hire domestic workers.

Companies currently pay to fly workers to and from their home islands and supply housing while they are working.

"If we could find American workers who could cut cane at a satisfactory rate, we could save $290 per man each year," Sorn said.

Foreign cutters from the offshore islands, especially Jamaica, are reputedly faster and less likely to complain about the brutal conditions that make cane cutting among the highest paid piecework in American agriculture.

However, Kristine Poplawski, an attorney for, the Farmworker Justice Fund, said domestic cutters are in a Catch-22 situation.

"Foreign cutters are faster because they are more experienced. American cutters can't get experience because the growers won't let them," said Poplawski.

These foreign workers are more docile, she added, and high pay and fear of deportation make them more compliant.

"The sugar industry has foreclosed there being any experienced domestic workers," Poplawski said, "you can go out and get experience, and you will still not be hired once you're on a blacklist."

Sorn and Terrill claim four of the Haitians named in Tuesday's suit were also plaintiffs in a suit filed three years ago by the Farmworkers Rights Organization in Immokalee. Many of the allegations are similar.

The U.S. District Court in Miami 18 months ago dismissed the suit, saying the plaintiffs had not pursued their grievances through appropriate administrative sources.

Both men say it appears attorneys are prepared to try again when they failed to win the earlier suit.

Poplawski said she was not involved in the previous suit and that it has no relation to Tuesday's action.

"This has nothing to do with the H-2 program," she said. "I think that's been their standard defense. It's a little outrageous of them to point their fingers at Legal Services."

The attorney believes the industry has turned the original intent of the H-2 program upside down. The plan was to hire domestic workers when possible, but American workers are now being systematically left out.

"There are specific, concrete grievances that growers violate antitrust, labor and employment laws. It's a valid lawsuit."

Both Terrill and Sorn are outraged that federally funded legal aid services can use tax money to continue a fight they say has all ready been lost.

"I guess what bothers me as a citizen," Sorn said, "is that they're using tax money to defend people who came here illegally. Apparently, they prefer to defend illegals than people who come here legally."

"It's bordering on criminal," said Terrill, "for federally funded organizations to continue reshaping these things over and over again at the expense of the taxpayer."

HOW GOOD IS DINO'S PIZZA RESTAURANT

We think our food is pretty darn good, but we don't like to brag, so we'll tell you this true story...

A very nice lady came into our restaurant last week and related this to us. She was passing by on her way back to work, she said, after buying a burger for lunch when she noticed we were open. She liked the atmosphere at Dino's. She liked the food, so she took the burger back to work, sold it to one of her friends and came back to dine with us.

She told us she was glad she did. We were happy too. Half the fun of owning a Pizza restaurant is making people happy.

We hope you'll dine with us sometime. We think you will be glad you did. We know we will.

GED testing set for Glades Central

The next GED Test Administration will be for those interested to take the pre-test as soon as possible.

All GED applicants must take and pass a GED pre-test before they will be allowed to complete their application for the GED.

Since in some cases applicants must do some remedial prior to signing up for the GED, it is a good idea for those interested to take the pre-test as soon as possible.

The pre-test is administered Mondays through Thursdays from 6:30 p.m. at the Glades Central Community School Annex Office.

There is no fee for the pre-test. As in the past, applicants must be 18 or over.

Applicants must sign up for the GED by July 18th, 1983. The next Test Administration will be October, 1983.

For additional information contact the Community School Office at 996-4950 between the hours of 2 p.m. and 10 p.m.

Card of thanks

A special thank you to our many friends for your love and each expression of sympathy. Our loved one is now the Lord and you have been a great comfort to us.

We would like also, to thank the Belle Glade Police Department, Rescue Squad and Glades General Hospital for their promptness, concern and every effort to help.

God bless you all!

Recipes of Chamber Presidents

Yams in Orange Shells

Jim Bennett, President of Pahokee's Chamber of Commerce selected this dish as one of his favorite recipes. He has been president of the Chamber for the past 1½ years and also is president of Wetherington Funeral Home, Inc.

He has also served as chairman for the Pahokee Freedom Festival for the past two years. Bennett says this recipe is an excellent side dish when served with turkey and ham.

Ingredients

1 can (40 oz.) yams or 7 medium baked sweet potatoes.
5 navel oranges
¾ cup sugar or sugar substitute
½ cup margarine

1 tablespoon vanilla extract
½ cup raisins
Optional: 1 cup shredded coconut and 1 cup chopped pecans

Cut oranges in half. Squeeze juice and remove pulp and insides of orange shells. Keep shells and juice.

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Combine yams (or sweet potatoes), sugar, butter, and vanilla. Mash until smooth.

Add orange juice to make a light mixture.

Stir in raisins, coconut, and pecans.

Suggestion: Place orange shells in muffin tin. This will keep shells from turning over.

Pour mixture into shells. Bake 30 minutes. In case oranges are not available, substitute orange concentrate and place mixture in baking dish.

Stuffed Mushrooms with Crabmeat

Steve Weeks, President of the Belle Glade Chamber of Commerce, loves this recipe, which makes for great hors d'oeuvres. He said that he takes credit in making the dish, but he has his wife, Mary, 'do the hard stuff'.

Ingredients

1 cup crab meat, fresh or frozen
2 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons finely chopped scallions
¼ cup bechamel sauce

¼-½ teaspoon lemon juice
Salt
White Pepper
2 dozen 2 inch mushroom caps

Prepare bechamel sauce beforehand by heating 2 tablespoons butter and 3 tablespoons flour together, stirring the whole time.

Add 1 cup hot milk and let come to a boil. Take off heat and while stirring, season mixture with salt as it thickens.

For stuffed mushrooms, Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Check crab meat for cartilage or shells and shred with fork.

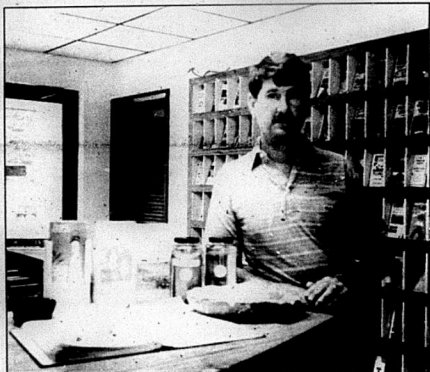

Place butter in an 8-10 inch skillet and saute scallions for 2 minutes or until soft.

Stir in meat and toss with scallions for 10 seconds.

Put meat in scallions in a large bowl. Add sauce, and season with salt and white pepper.

Butter shallow baking/roasting dish. Sprinkle mushroom caps with salt and spoon in crab filling.

Arrange caps in dish and bake in the upper third of the oven for 10-15 minutes.

STEVE WEEKS

London Broil

Fixing this dish is a joint effort between Jerry Beck, Moore Haven's Chamber of Commerce President, and his wife. Beck has been on the Chamber board for five years and has been Chamber president for one year. When ready to eat this particular dish, Beck suggests putting a little vinegar or pepper sauce on the cabbage for a spicy flavor.

Ingredients

One 6-7 pound pork shoulder or ham
2 large Spanish onions, quartered
1 head cabbage, quartered
6-8 medium carrots, cut in 2 inch lengths

8 medium sized Irish potatoes, cut in half
Everglades Seasoning
Salt
Pepper

Boil ham in a large pot for 1-1½ hours. Add vegetables and seasoning. Continue to boil for approximately 1 hour, or until the vegetables are done. Additional water may be needed to help cook dish.

Seminole lifestyles, struggles outlined to Methodist women's group

By NANCY OWENS

Ms. Mable Haught, a spokesperson for the Seminole Mission and a member of the Bird Clan, informed members of the First United Methodist Church about the Seminole lifestyles, their struggles and their progress through the Seminole Mission.

Ms. Haught is a native American Indian Community Developer and director of the United Methodist Seminole Mission in Florida who lives on the Mission land located a few miles south of Brighton Reservation.

Through a slide presentation Wednesday, July 10, she showed the Methodist Women how the mission has progressed by responding to the needs of their people through monies and volunteers.

The mission has,

Diabetes, kidney disease and other health problems are infecting a large proportion of the people.

among other things, equipped the new children's Billy Bowlegs Campground and helped organize a Christmas party for the Indian children who otherwise would have nothing due to the rampant poverty in the reservations.

Drugs and violence are a major problem for the Indians and many of the Seminole are very concerned with the fate of their children. A limited youth program does exist, but it is not available on weekends, when it is most needed. As the mother of three adolescents, Ms.

Haught is well aware of the problems which plague young people on the reservations.

One ambition of Ms. Haught is a nursing home on one of the reservations. The lack of a Seminole medical facility for the elderly is an issue close to Mable's heart. Two years ago much of her energy was devoted to her mother, who had been hospitalized with diabetes and had her legs amputated.

Ms. Haught's mother, now deceased, exemplifies the plight of many elderly Seminoles. Diabetes, kidney disease, and other health problems are infecting a large proportion of the people.

The quality of health care is poor on the reservations and the only medical facility is a clinic which a doctor visits only once a week. Hospitals are often far from the reservations, which is a problem in a medical emergency and greatly limits family visits.

According to a recent article by Ruthann Robson, there are approximately 1,600 Seminoles and five Seminole Reservations in Florida. The Moccasin Tribe in the Everglades area is descended from Polly Parker, who is called the "Mama of the Seminoles."

Ms. Parker escaped the forced emigration imposed on the Seminoles by the United States government interested in removing the Indian Problem west of the Mississippi. The written historical accounts of forced emigration and the preceding Seminole Wars emphasize the non-Seminole perspective.

The tradition of the Seminoles, however, embodies respect for women. Their society was once a matrilineal one, in which descent was traced only through the mother and the groom abandoned his own family to take up residence in the home of his wife's family.

One of the programs the Mission has developed is a women's center which provides support, counseling, vocational and shelter for women in crisis. Unfortunately, the Seminoles have been susceptible to problems such as domestic violence.

Ms. Haught's leadership in the Mission demonstrated the Christian commitment to women's equality, compatible with the traditional Seminole view of women.

Another important preserver of the culture is their language. The Mission supports the Creek Preservation Program. While some just as important that they also be fluent in their native tongue. The Creek Preservation Program includes classes in Creek language.

It is vital that the young Seminole learn
